Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

AT THE Saenger theater Monday and Tuesday there is a striking camera "shot." It isn't in the feature film. It isn't in the news-reel. But you will find it in the "March of Time"—that forceful dramatization of world news which was invented by the editors of Time magazine and introduced to the motion picture screen. The "shot" I am talking about was taken from behind Adolf Hitler, dictator of all Germany, as he stood on a platform overlooking a crowd of ONE MILLION PEOPLE.

Corn-Hog Federal Contract Wins by Seven-to-One Vote

Sweeping Victory Scored by AAA in National Farm Referendum

WINS EVERYWHERE

Long-Time Control Program Proposal Sweeps Every Farm State

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—AAA officials, expressing delight at the overwhelming endorsement of the 1936 corn-hog control program in the nation-wide farm referendum over the week-end, made plans Monday to increase pork production next year. They indicated that the increase would be 25 to 30 per cent over this year.

Carries 7 to 1. By the Associated Press. Slowly-mounting returns in the national referendum on a 1936 corn-hog control program, under the week-end, an enthusiastic mandate from farmers for continuance of the AAA crop adjustment plan.

On the basis of incomplete reports from 31 states, those voting "yes" outnumbered those opposed in Saturday's balloting by a margin of more than seven to one. In not a single state was the preliminary tally close.

At 10 p. m. Sunday the count stood: For a new control program, 308,661. Against, 53,164.

Says Farmers Realize Duty. Returning to the capital after a trip on the government yacht Sequoia with President Roosevelt, Secretary Wallace issued a statement commending the nation's farmers for their favorable vote.

"The referendum means," Wallace said, "that corn-hog farmers of the country will be doing their best to increase hog production next year in such a way as will not bring about excessive over-production in subsequent years."

"They realize their triple duty: To the cause of soil conservation, and to the maintenance of a fair income for themselves."

"It is only natural that we should be pleased with the apparent approval of adjustment given by corn and hog farmers," said Chester C. Davis, AAA administrator, as he watched the returns come in at Washington. He added:

"If the final results bear out present indications, another voluntary contract will be offered for both corn and hogs."

To Increase Pork Supply. In a statement, Davis emphasized earlier assurances that the AAA would seek a 25 to 30 per cent increase in hog production next year, saying the "need for increasing the present pork supply of the nation will be kept in mind in plans for the next adjustment contract."

Asserting that early returns indicated the total vote might exceed the 579,716 ballots cast last year, Davis

Preacher Answers Governor Futrell

Rev. Blaylock Gets Into Controversy Over Liquor Control Law

LITTLE ROCK.—The Rev. Arden P. Blaylock, pastor of the First Baptist church, Twelfth and Louisiana streets, an honorary member of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, in an address at 7:30 Monday night at the church, was to answer Governor Futrell's challenge to the W. C. T. U. relative to conditions before and since repeal of prohibition.

Members of the W. C. T. U. will attend the meeting in a body, and the public has been invited. Governor Futrell Friday responded to criticism directed at him at the state convention of the W. C. T. U. which declared that the executive had not kept a promise to have liquor legalization repealed if conditions became worse.

The governor denied that he had ever promised to have any law repealed, and said that the W. C. T. U. had not presented evidence to prove that conditions had grown worse since repeal.

Governor Futrell has been invited to present or send a representative.

Cash Register Not Supreme in Press

Journalism Superior in the South, Says Chattanooga Publisher

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn.—(AP)—Social change, but a change without conflict was advocated Sunday by George Fort Milton, publisher of the Chattanooga News, in an address before the League of Industrial Democracy. His subject was "The Press and Social Conflict."

The L. I. D. concluded its two-day conference on social and economic problems of the South Sunday afternoon.

"The newspaper is not exempt from the modifying process," Milton said. "The great technological advances of the past half century have greatly affected journalism."

Turning to advertising, he said: "Newspapers in extremely active competition with each other and in other forms of sales activity, to carry these messages to inattentive readers."

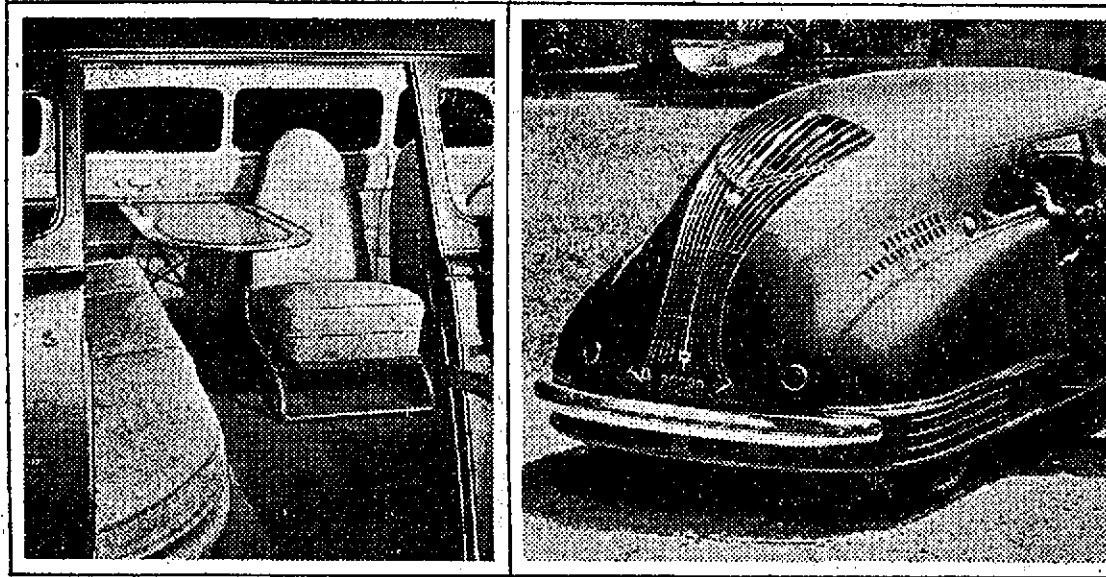

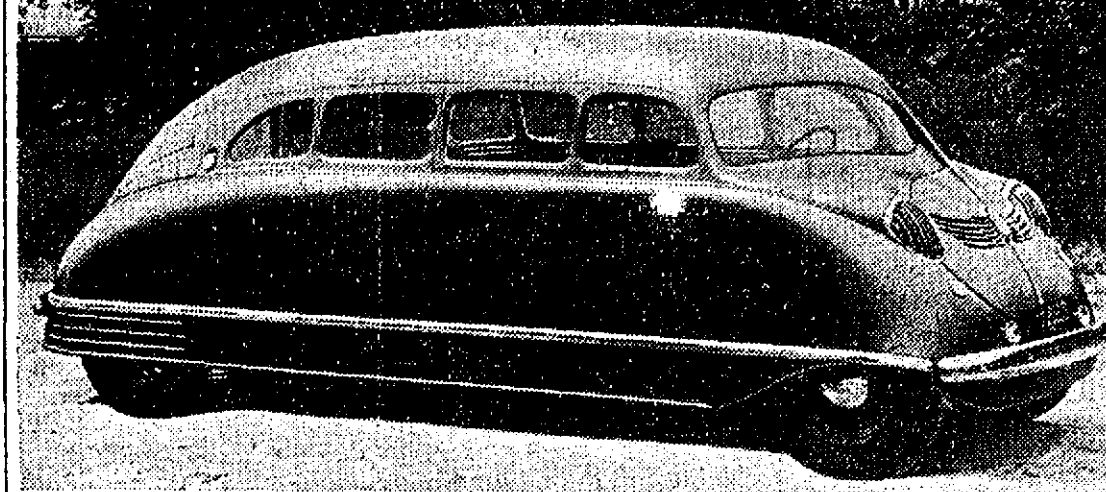

Probably the most impatient have been the buyers of huge advertising volume; perhaps the newspaper of tomorrow will have to readjust itself to smaller advertising revenues, and to seek a larger circulation price. The subscriber would pay more for the paper; it would be a better paper.

"One of the fortunate things about the South, from a newspaper standpoint, is that it has been more resistant to each register conquest of journalism than most sections. There has been an unbroken line of vigorous editorial journalism. Let me mention several that are outstanding—Josephus Daniels' News and Observer in Raleigh; William E. Gonzales and his Columbia State; W. T. Anderson and the Macon Telegraph; James M. Thompson's two papers in New Orleans; the Dallas Morning News and the Houston Chronicle in Texas; Richard Lloyd Jones and the Tulsa Tribune; J. N. Holsell and the Arkansas Gazette; I could name a number of others, of which it can be said the paper is run from its editor's office."

Japan Tests Charcoal Auto

TOKYO, Japan.—(AP)—The Japanese army, always seeking to lessen dependence on foreign—chiefly American—oil and British—sources of oil and gasoline, is assisting inventors of an automobile driven by charcoal gases. Tests of a model capable of running 140 miles on 65 pounds of charcoal were reported to promise early success.

Luxurious, Rear-Drive Auto Invades Country

Before long you may see a snub-nosed bullet-shaped automobile scud by, and that will introduce you to the radically different type of motor car that its designer predicts will be adopted by the industry within five years. It is the Scarab, a rear-drive car, built by William B. Stout of Detroit. Side view, at top, shows that it has no running boards and not even door handles to break the smooth lines of the exterior. Electric, key-controlled switch buttons open the doors. The engine in the rear is separated from the body by a double-soundproof bulkhead; the entire mechanism, on compact, up-lift seats, as shown at lower left, can be moved about, and a table set in back. Lower right photo shows rear view of the car, which will be limited to 100 in production and will sell for $5000.

Urge Starhemberg as Austrian King

Vice Chancellor May First Become Regent of Fascist State

LINZ, Austria.—(AP)—A high authority in the Heimwehr (Home Guard) and Fatherland Front said Sunday night that a movement has been started to make Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, now vice chancellor, regent of Austria.

"The possibility that soon thereafter he might be proclaimed king must be reckoned with," the source asserted a few hours after the vice chancellor had reviewed 20,000 armed members of the Heimwehr in a parade similar to that in Vienna yesterday.

The parade was regarded as a demonstration of loyalty to Starhemberg in view of the recent elimination from the cabinet of Emil Feg, minister of the interior, at the vice chancellor's insistence.

Band Uniforms to Arrive on Monday

Blue-and-Gold Outfits Expected Here Momentarily—Still Need $100

Thirty-five new uniforms for the Hope Boys band were expected to arrive here Monday afternoon, Mrs. E. P. Young of the auxiliary of the band, announced.

Mrs. E. P. Young said the new uniforms, bought from a Cincinnati, Ohio, firm through Gorman & Gonsell, were to have been shipped last Friday.

The uniforms are blue with gold trimmings. An additional donation of $1 by Senator John L. Wilson brought the total benefit fund to $848.29. Mrs. Young said that approximately $100 was needed to pay for the uniforms in full.

After the uniforms arrive another "cake walk" will be staged in an effort to raise the balance, Mrs. Young said.

France to Boycott Italy; U. S. Neutral

America Expresses "Sympathetic Interest" in Message to League

GENEVA, Switzerland.—(AP)—Japan and Germany gave League of Nations officials reason to believe they would pattern their policies after the United States with respect to League sanctions against Italy.

France Joins Britain. GENEVA, Switzerland.—(AP)—France notified the League of Nations Sunday she has accepted economic sanctions against Italy.

Thus she joined Great Britain in a drive to isolate Benito Mussolini because he has made war on Ethiopia.

Both France and Britain now have announced their readiness to enforce the most powerful sanctions—an economic boycott of Italy—by agreeing to buy nothing from the Fascist state and by stopping the exportation of Italy of products needed in the manufacture of armaments and munitions.

French acceptance of economic sanctions. He informed League officials these would be applied on the date to be fixed by the League, but asked four days' time to take the necessary steps.

The League's "general staff" of 52 nations meets Thursday to set the date for application of economic sanctions. The United States' reply to the League invitation for an expression on its action against Italy also reached Geneva. The note created a sensation. Special significance was attached to the closing sentence: "It

Italians Advance 12 Miles Nearer to Mountain Pass

London Reports Prospects for Early Peace Terms Are Shattered

JAP TRADE THREAT

New Spectre Rises as Tokyo Warns Against Injuring Her Commerce

By the Associated Press. Prepared for a counter-attack by Ethiopian tribesmen, Italy's Fascist armies drove deeper Monday into the interior of Haile Selassie's empire.

On the northern Aduwa-Adigrat sector, Mussolini's Roman legions advanced their lines more than 12 miles. A British Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Addis Ababa said that the civilian population of Makale, strategic mountain pass and gateway to the interior, had been ordered to evacuate.

Peace Goes Glimmering. LONDON, Eng.—(AP)—Authoritative sources suggested Monday that the present deadlock on Italo-Ethiopian peace proposals may continue for a long time.

The suggestion was interpreted, in interested quarters as a new stiffening of Great Britain's strong policy of opposition to war.

Warning by Japan. GENEVA, Switzerland.—(P)—The League of Nations was diverted from its interest in the Italo-Ethiopian war Monday by a warning from Nomioto, Japanese diplomat, that his country would not tolerate trade discrimination.

He expressly warned against discrimination against Japan in the regions formerly belonging to Germany and Turkey and now held under mandates by the various powers.

He said Japan would insist on equal opportunities in the mandated territories despite her resignation from the League.

Italians Fortified. ENTISIO, Ethiopia.—(Copyright Associated Press)—Officers declared Monday that the Italian position between Aduwa and Adigrat now is strengthened to a degree believed invaluable to any Ethiopian counter-attack.

It is said that the high command believes Saturday's advance by the northern forces blasted any hope which the Ethiopians may have held of forming a wedge between the two columns commanded by General Emilio de Bono.

WITH THE ITALIAN NORTHERN ARMIES in the field—(Exchange Telegraph)—Heavy fighting during Sunday night along the Setit river with the Ethiopians' losses estimated at 100 dead and many wounded. (The Setit river is in northwestern Ethiopia near the frontier of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.)

The Ethiopians apparently made a determined effort to invade Eritrea from the extreme northwest corner of Ethiopia and the adjacent Sudan. Under cover of darkness a strong force of warriors tried to ford the river.

But the new system of blockhouses devised to protect this section of the Eritrean frontier proved their worth. In the blockhouses and firing Vorey lights, the Italians frustrated the attack with rifle and machine gun volleys.

They drove off the Ethiopians with heavy losses. Later, Italian outposts down the river reported many bodies had floated past.

Mussolini Raises Money. ROME, Italy.—(AP)—Benito Mussolini's armies moved deeper into Africa Sunday night as Europe's statement jugged "amicable" settlements of his war on Ethiopia.

Premier Laval of France still was reported seeking an arrangement to give Italy land and economic rights in Ethiopia and safety for new frontiers. But Mussolini went ahead to take the land and appropriate the rights, looking after his own protection.

When the fourteenth anniversary of the Fascist march on Rome was celebrated Monday, Italian troops were expected to be moving on Makale, once important objective of the northern invasion. Their second big advance began Sunday. Dispatches said native Eritrean troops had occupied two more towns in a determined southward drive.

Monday, Mussolini sighted the billions of lire in gold he needs for his war. Financial experts said his huge 61,270,000,000 lire, five per cent conversion loan was half subscribed and was certain to yield him the 10,000,000,000 lire (about $800,000,000) in fresh money which Fascist leaders have estimated as the eventual total cost of the conflict.

Unofficial quarters said "time, the great physician," was working for Italy in four ways.

They are: 1—When there is a settlement. Italy

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. MORRIS FISHER

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

You may be able to tell a drunkard by the way he acts, but there's many a time when even police have been fooled by supposedly drunk people, who really were found to be dying from a brain hemorrhage or from pneumonia.

Often police find diagnosis of drunkards more difficult by the fact that the suspected person has had a secondary skull fracture after falling when drunk. But many modern police stations in large cities are scientifically equipped to examine specimens of blood and determine the amount of alcohol in it. Thus it is possible to be quite certain whether a person is drunk.

Drinking a large quantity of alcohol at one time results chiefly in a disturbance of the nervous system. The muscles do not work well together, the mind is a little bit upset, and sometimes unconsciousness follows.

Interestingly enough, one of the effects of alcoholism is a lowering of the temperature, particularly if the person who is drunk is exposed to cold.

One hospital record shows a case in which a patient who was drunk, and who had lain for sometime in the car, came in with a temperature of 75 degrees, in contrast to a normal temperature of 98.6 degrees. Ten hours later the temperature of this person reached 90 degrees.

Much more attention has been paid to chronic alcoholism than to the acute form of drunkenness. Large doses of alcohol, or even small doses taken day after day, may bring about changes in the human body. These changes are reflected chiefly in the nervous system, but may also concern the stomach, the kidneys and the heart.

Most of the tissues of the body show degenerative changes as a result of alcoholism, the most serious changes being those which affect the liver and result in a small, hard, contracted organ.

The worst form of alcoholism is delirium tremens. A spree in a person who is a moderate drinker seldom results in an attack of delirium tremens, but a temporary excess in a habitual drinker may bring on the attack.

Sometimes it follows the sudden withdrawal of alcohol from a chronic inebriate.

If delirium tremens afflicts the person, talks constantly and incoherently, is constantly in motion and usually wants to go out to attend to some imaginary business.

There is also a disturbance in sight and hearing, so that the person with delirium tremens sees all sorts of bugs and animals in the room and seems to think that they are crawling on him.

As a result of these hallucinations the man with the "D. T.'s" frequently attempts to jump out of a window. For this reason those with D. T.'s must be constantly watched or fastened to the bed to prevent fatal injuries.

A BOOK A DAY
By BRUCE CATTION
"A Treasury of the Theatre" is one of those books which, as the old-time patent medicine vendor used to say, fill a long-felt want. It assembles in one fat volume 24 of the world's greatest plays, from Aeschylus down to Maxwell Anderson.

Jonson with "Volpone" and Moliere with "The Misanthrope." There is a play from the Japanese and another from India. And the wind-up, of course, includes the great Greeks: Aristophanes, Euripides, Sophocles and Aeschylus.

All in all, the book is a whole library in itself. If you want to familiarize yourself with the great plays which you'll never have a chance to see on the stage, I can't think of a better investment.

Published by Simon and Schuster, the book sells for $3.75.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

A correspondent complains that her husband is constantly rude to her mother. Another says her husband disparages and insults her before her children. I am asked to give the men a lecture.

Says one, "Isn't it selfish for people to say what they think on the slightest provocation?" Asks the other, "Why do men think they are entitled to run down their wives before others?" The children look on their father now as perfect, and me as stupid and incapable. If he thinks things are not right, why can't he tell me by myself? He always picks on me when people are about, and I am his opinion."

There is no misery greater than this. Next to it is the perpetual call to interfere to keep peace in the family; as in the case with my first correspondent.

Women Also Are Offenders
Not men alone, but women, too, are offenders. However, when a man reaches the end of his endurance he always can reach for his hat, for temporary escape at least. Besides a man will fight back; as a rule, if a woman holds him, or his, up to scorn.

The wife is more likely to try to mollify, to stand between her spouse and the effect of his ruthless actions. She explains to strangers, excuses him to her family, upholds his honor if she can with the children and eventually allows them to think of her as they will rather than irritate or cross her man further. Plainly a buffer, she is forever saving his pride and her own. This is the most difficult role a woman can play and retain her happiness.

This attempt of hers to stabilize the situation is almost always unappreciated by this great he-man who thinks he's Mike but bears all the thumb prints of an overbearing brat never grown up.

Tolerance is cut out of his dictionary. Too bad. This sweet world is made up of four billion people all of whom are absolutely intolerable to somebody. The civilized mind is that one which can tolerate the most. The least civilized, that which tolerates least.

Keeping Silence Is an Art
Next to genuine tolerance is the art of keeping one's mouth shut. What a place the world would be if each of us felt so gargantuan importance as to follow our opinions of all with whom we disagree, or whose personality and habits irritate us.

True, someone coined a phrase about patience ceasing to be a virtue but that takes no stock of insult. There never has been and never will be any mention in the by-laws of ethics of anything that admits the insult. The lowest form is the one flung at the mother before her children or any member of the family before other members. Yes, it is selfishness plus much else. It smacks largely of the coward who turns bully and picks on something half his size.

I know too many women who are thin, tired, afraid of their shadows; women with pitiful ingratiating smiles and hurt eyes. Somewhere the great lords who are feeling just dandy because they have the pleasant prospect of going home and throwing around some more sneers that any man would knock them down for.

The Golden Feather

by Robert Bruce © 1935 NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
JEAN DUNN, secretary to DONALD MONTAGUE, lawyer, delays her answer when HILARY VALLEY, automobile salesman, asks Jean to marry him.

At the Golden Feather night club she meets SANDY HARRIS, whose business connection is vague. Sandy introduces her to a man named WINN, who is a bank robber. He finds some stolen bonds, traces them to Montague, then to Hobbie. Federal men go to locate WINN. LARRY GIBSON, federal agent, is trying to locate WINN. LARRY GIBSON, federal agent, is trying to locate WINN.

CHAPTER XXIII
FOR a long moment after Jean had demanded that he explain his deceit, Sandy looked at her steadfastly.

"I reckon I'd better tell you the whole story," he said softly. "I'd intended to all along, but somehow I just kept putting it off. It'd been better if I'd spoken."

She waited, breathless, looking up at him with that expression by which a girl unwittingly tells a man, "Please, please tell me some sort of story—any sort of story—that I can believe so I can stop doubting you." Again he patted her hand gently.

"It starts a long time ago," he said, the western drawl in his voice more pronounced than ever. "Back in Oklahoma. I was just a kid, then, and kind of wild. Another fellow and I got into a scrape. Fact of the matter, we'd got to sort of helling around that little town we lived in, and we felt in with a bunch that used to play cards and drink pretty heavy. Anyhow—"

He looked away once more, as if staring beyond the green, coolness of the little park to the open ranges of the west.

"This fellow and I, we were working on a cattle ranch outside of town," he went on presently. "One Saturday the boss had us take a bunch of yearlings in to the shipping point. We were to take 'em in and sell 'em, there in the town, and then of course come back with the money next day. Well, we got in all right, and sold 'em—got about $200. This other fellow kept the money, and then he and I set out to have some fun before starting back."

"WELL, like I said, we were young and wild then. We fell in with these birds I mentioned and we each got more or less of a skunk. I remember I finally fell asleep in a little room back of a poolroom. When I came to it was after dark, and here was Rags—that was what we called this side-kick of mine—standing there looking like somebody that'd been sent for and couldn't come."

"I was still kind of muddled, and I asked him what the matter was. Well, it seems he'd got into a poker game and got cleaned. Not only lost all his money, but also lost that $200 we were supposed to take back to the boss. So there we were. I remember Rags saying, 'You're in this just as much as I am, and I was still so kind of lazy I didn't argue with him. So we sat there, and Rags had a bottle, and he said we'd have a drink and get straightened up so we could think what to do—and of course we just got worse."

"Anyhow, after a while Rags got an idea. There's a moving picture house down the street a ways, and being Saturday night, there'd be sure to be a big crowd in it. So Rags said we'd go down—and stick the place up, and get our money that way. If he hadn't been drunk he'd never in the world have dreamed of doing a thing like that, and if I'd been myself I'd have talked him out of it."

"But we were both—well, pretty well crooked. I had just some enough not to like the idea, and I argued and argued, but it was no use. Finally Rags said, 'Well, I'm going to do it, and if you're too yellow to come along, why to hell with you.' So he started out. He'd got a gun somewhere—I don't know where."

"I followed him. I had some hazy notion of stopping him, or of warning the theater people, or taking the gun away from him; anyway, I followed. He got ahead of me, and I ran to catch up. I overtook him just as he got up to the ticket window of the movie house and stuck his gun on the cashier."

"Well, something went wrong. I don't know how it happened, but Rags—he pulled the trigger and shot her. Killed her instantly. Then there was an awful tumult, and I remember running off in the dark as fast as I could go. I must've wandered down into the freight yards and shaken people off my track; anyway, next morning I came to in a box car, 50 miles out of town and still traveling."

"I was scared green when I remembered what had happened. I stopped off at a city down near the Oklahoma-Texas line, and lay low waiting to find out how things stood. Then I learned they'd got Rags. The cops had chased him and shot him, and he'd died on the way to jail; but before he died he'd gone and put all the blame on me—so here I was, wanted for murder."

"He stopped and patted her hand slowly once more. "Well, there it is," he said at last. "I had to keep going. I left Oklahoma and I never went back. I came out this way, got into business, and did well. But all the time that thing's been hanging over me."

"This business up in Dover was like I told you—just a case of mistaken identity. But—do you see? I didn't dare get arrested, even for something I hadn't done. Because if I did, as like as not they'd start checking up in the files, the way they always do, and they'd find the handbills that were sent out from Oklahoma years ago—'Wanted: For Murder,' with a photograph, description, and everything."

"I'd be sent back to Oklahoma, and just as sure as you're a foot high I'd be sent up. So when I found out about this up in Dover, I—well, I got panicky."

He looked at her and grinned ruefully.

"As a matter of fact, I'd been in a movie that Friday afternoon," he went on. "But who'd have believed it? How could I have proved it? I couldn't have."

"So—I took advantage of you. You didn't remember what day we'd been out together, and it was too easy. And that fellow at the boat house, he didn't remember either. I went out to see him, and I had him talked into thinking I had all happened on Friday, instead of Thursday, before he knew what was going on."

He paused and looked at her soberly.

"I ask your pardon for having lied to you and got you mixed up in it," he said solemnly. "Can you forgive me?"

Pity welled up in her. She squeezed his hand and said, "Oh, Sandy, of course! But why didn't you tell me?"

"I should have," he admitted. "I wish I had. But—well, I guess I was afraid to. You see, I—his eyes burned into hers—"I was afraid you'd not want to see me again, if you knew about this Oklahoma business."

"But it wasn't your fault!" she protested eagerly.

"I know. But I couldn't be sure you'd look at it that way."

"You poor boy," she said softly, after a pause. "Is this—this thing always going to be hanging over you?"

"He looked up and brightened. "Oh, I forgot to tell you about that part of it," he said. "You see, I told Mr. Montague all about it. He'd handled some legal business for a friend of mine, was how I happened to hear about him and go to him."

"He said he'd put a private detective agency to work, digging up evidence, and he was sure he could get enough proof to convince the authorities back there of the truth of the matter. He's got these people working on it now. Before the end of the summer it ought to be all cleared up. Then I can come and go like anybody else, with nothing to be afraid of."

He squared his shoulders and threw his head back, and Jean gave a sigh of relief.

"Sandy!" she said. "I'm so glad."

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

Judging from the array of scalp preparations shown at the National Hairdressers' Convention, beauticians are putting health treatments ahead of new coiffure styles. There were the usual displays of exotic curls and twists, of course, but these were far outnumbered by the exhibits of tonics, oils, shampoos and concoctions to improve the condition of scalp and hair.

If your own hair is dull and lifeless, too oily or too dry, why not plan to spend a little extra money out of your beauty budget on routines to make it glossy and lovely? It is better to go without a wave for a month or two, spending the wave money for treatment, than to go on with dandruff or some other disagreeable defect.

If you pick an operator who understands how to deal with your special trouble, treatments for two months should cure it.

If you have dandruff, get a scalp massage and a balsam oil shampoo every week for two months. If you can't afford a balsam shampoo and finger-wave, wear your hair straight and get the shampoo anyway. Hot oil is excellent for dry hair.

Remember, of course, that no matter how efficient your operator or expensive his treatments, you must do your part at home. Brush nightly and, if possible, massage your hair brush when you have finished. If you have dandruff, sterilize it as well.

If you seldom go to a beauty shop, learn to care for your scalp and to shampoo in a professional manner at home. Use hot oil the night before a shampoo, wash with a reliable shampoo liquid and rinse several times, using a hand spray, of course, if possible dry in the sunshine.

WHAT ...haven't you seen the new NORGE Range?

IT IS EVERYTHING YOU'D EXPECT OF A MODERN GAS RANGE PLUS THE NEW CONCENTRATOR* BURNER

• Every woman who cooks should see this new gas range by Norge. It is a revolutionary development in modern cooking equipment.

See this new Concentrator* burner—an exclusive Norge development which provides quicker heat, saves fuel and prevents spilled liquids from clogging ports. See the new exclusive self-lifting Broilator, which uses a new principle of cooking to bring you a new taste thrill. See the new easy-to-clean oven with its rounded corners inside and out; with Norge approved heat control.

And in the part you don't see—extra quality everywhere. A rigid angle iron frame supports all weight, so that there is no strain on the porcelain parts. Extra heavy oven insulation prevents heat from escaping at the corners as well as through the wall.

See this sensational new range. Compare it with your present cooking equipment. Compare it with any other range you ever saw. Ask yourself if you do not deserve the new convenience and economy—as well as the better cooking results this range will give you.

* CONCENTRATOR BURNER ...so designed as to apply maximum heat at center, from which it spreads over the bottom of the vessel instead of up the sides. Burner is protected with a ring cover which makes it spill-proof.

Courage to Live

To those who have tried and seeming-ly failed, Reach out, dear Lord, and comfort them today. For those whose hope has dimmed, whose faith has pined, Lift up some lighted heavenly torch I pray. They are so frightened, Lord; reach out a hand. They are so hurt and helpless; be their friend. Baffled and blind, they do not understand— They think this dark and tangled road the end. Oh, Touch to flame their hope that has burned low, And strike with fire faith's ashes that are dead. Let them walk proudly once again, and go Seeking the sure and steadfast light ahead. Help them to move among their fellow men With courage to live, courage to try again.—Selected.

(The United States) views with sympathetic interest the individual or concerted efforts of other nations to preserve peace and to localize and shorten the duration of war.

Thirty-five countries now have announced acceptance of the arms embargo recommendation, which also includes the lifting of any such bars to Ethiopia.

The American Note
WASHINGTON — (AP) — The United States through Secretary Hull Sunday night reaffirmed its stand of independent neutrality toward the Italo-Ethiopian war, but expressed "sympathetic interest" in efforts by others to bring a halt to armed conflict.

In a formal communication to the League of Nations, the secretary of state gave this reply to an invitation to comment upon the program of sanctions against Italy and to outline steps taken by this government.

Hull refrained from making any direct commitments on the League's efforts to halt the African war through economic pressure. In fact, the "interest" expressed in halting war was so drafted as to apply to any or all wars.

In substance, the American reply to the League's communication was a summarization of steps taken by this government under the neutrality law.

Contributing to Peace
In the note, delivered through Hugh R. Wilson, American minister to Switzerland, to Dr. Auguste de Vasconcelles, president of the League's Committee of Co-ordination, Hull said: "Realizing that war adversely affects every country, that it may seriously endanger the economic welfare of each, causes untold human misery, and even threatens the existence of civilization, the United States, in keeping with the letter and spirit of the pact of Paris and other peace obligations, undertakes at all times to not only exercise its moral influence in favor of peace throughout the world, but to contribute in every practicable way within the limitations of our foreign policy to that end."

"It views with sympathetic interest the individual or concerted efforts of other nations to preserve peace or to localize and shorten the duration of war."

Salvation, Theme of Rev. Bert Webb

Apostle Paul's Message Elaborated on at Sunday Night Service

The Rev. Bert Webb preached at the Hope Gospel Tabernacle Sunday night on the subject of "Your Own Salvation," basing his message on Paul's admonition to the Philippian Church to "Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling." Phil. 2:12.

"Salvation doesn't mean much to some folks," the Rev. Mr. Webb said. "It is something vague or far off. Salvation is the most important thing in the world. Business, school, homes, are secondary to the salvation of your soul. For some reason, many people will not seriously consider the matter. If each one in this congregation could spend five minutes seriously considering 'where am I going to spend eternity' you would come to this altar before I finish this message."

"You have to get salvation before you can work it out. If you are trying to be a good boy, girl, man or woman without having salvation, you are laboring against great odds. Let me offer this advice: Surrender yourself to God, get Christ in your heart, and he will help you to work out your salvation."

"There are three separate, distinct parts to salvation. It means first of all that through no goodness of your own the Lord Jesus Christ covers with His own blood every wrong, every sin you ever did in all your life. He forgives you of every last one of them. Some of you have for 10, 20 or 30 years left God out of your program, but when we come to Him and ask God to forgive us he blot out the past."

"Second, from every testing, every trial, every temptation that comes your way, salvation means that He has made a way of escape. Every day He gives you power to live the Christian life."

Third, God has looked ahead to see that temptations that we cannot bear will not come our way. Thus the past, present and future are taken care of in salvation.

"God's eternal justice, or God's eternal mercy will be your choice."

The Rev. Mr. Webb has announced the following subjects:
Monday night: "How Far Can You See?"
Tuesday night: "A man hatched to a wagon."
Wednesday night: "The fashions and dress for 1936."
Thursday night: "Prophecy 'Hitler, Mussolini and Roosevelt.'"
Friday night: "Seven minutes on seven different texts."

There will be no Saturday night services during this campaign.

expects to have a firm grasp on what she wants, and it then will be only a question of accepting what she has accomplished.

2—Sometimes, these sources asserted, look each day more like unwanted children of bickering parents who are likely to leave them on Great Britain's doorstep.

3—Ethiopia allegedly is disintegrating. "Hundreds" of chiefs and "thousands" of warriors, Italians claim, have joined the Fascists in both the north and south.

4—The world, these Italian observers contend, is less hostile to Mussolini's "expedition" and is shocked at the idea that Great Britain might have gone to war with Italy. It also must contrast Italy's "liberation" of Ethiopia slaves with the League of Nations' "failure" to induce Emperor Haile Selassie to free them, they said.

11 Duce, it was said, is keeping the door open for a settlement which he thinks should be acceptable to the League. These persons insisted Ethiopia has not fulfilled League requirements and therefore is not entitled to Geneva's backing. Eventually, they argued, this view will be accepted and Italy will be given credit for having remained in the League with most of its members against her.

Sister MARY'S KITCHEN

By MARY E. DAGUE

NEB Service Staff Writer

On days I am bored with life and three meals a day, I go out into the kitchen and experiment with seasonings. I cannot emphasize too often the opportunities for cook's amusement and family pleasure that lie in your condiment pots and jars.

Of course, you must use gumption in choosing seasoning. Don't kill the flavor of your food with your cinnamon or all spice or pepper. But while the soup that has been salted with too heavy a hand often seems like a tragedy, the tasteless dish is even more so. Desserts, candies and sweets of all kinds gain in flavor if a few grains of salt are added. Any combination containing milk or cream requires salt. Even coffee is more delicious if a bit of salt goes into the fusion.

Sugar Helps Vegetables
Sugar is another everyday seasoning that work wonders when judiciously used. Unless vegetables are fresh from the garden at their season, they need to be brightened by sugar. Tomatoes must always have a dash of sugar. Roasts develop a richer flavor when a bit of sugar is rubbed into the surface. All dressings and sauces containing lemon juice or vinegar need some sugar.

Both sugar and salt are helpful in blending several flavors into a smooth combination. Highly spiced sauces and baked-stuffs are very dependent on skillful seasoning with salt and sugar.

As a seasoning for meat and dark sauces, black pepper is more effective than white because the real strength made. You need two pepper mills in your house, a wooden one for the kitchen and a pewter one, say, for the dining table. This insures freshly ground pepper for all seasoning purposes.

Cayenne pepper is something else again and must be used very sparingly, but a deft use of it lends zest to many a dish.

In soups, sauces and salads are with fish, meats and vegetables paprika's mild flavor is an addition. Its vivid color makes it an excellent garnish, too. Remember, though, there are two kinds—the Hungarian which is pungent and the Spanish which is very mild.

Cream of lima bean soup made faintly pink with paprika is nice served with toasted pimento cheese squares and olives.

Toasted Pimento Cheese Squares
Ten slices of bread cut 1-3 inch thick, 1½ cups American cream cheese, 3 tablespoons chopped pimento, 4 tablespoons butter.

The packaged cheese works up easily and smoothly. Mash cheese, add butter and pimento and mix until blended. Place five slices of bread, one on top of the other with cheese filling between. Repeat with remaining slices of bread. Put in refrigerator until firm, about ½ hour. Slice each mound of bread into 4 slices. Bake in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) until brown. Serve hot.

In this case the toasting develops flavor quite as much as the seasonings.

said "in that event we would, in my opinion, have an expression which would effectively represent the views of the men who produce most of the country's corn and hogs."

Not a Political Issue
He also declared the nation's farmers did not make a political issue of the question, asserting they had "voted economics, not politics." He voiced the opinion that the AAA was "not an issue as such."

Some observers at Washington found significance in this paragraph in Davis' statement.

"In both the 1934 and 1935 programs the producers developed and followed directions for use of land taken out of corn, which greatly stimulated planting of legumes and other soil building crops. The new contract will be more specific on that point. In connection with other new contracts offered for 1936, it will be required that an area at least equal to the number of acres withdrawn from production of crops covered by the contract, must be added to the normal area on the farm devoted to soil conserving and erosion preventing uses."

That statement was directly in line with President Roosevelt's comment last week, when he outlined a premonition AAA and said more attention should be paid to soil conservation. Officials said the new adjustment contracts probably would extend over four years, following the announced policy of obtaining long-range programs for all major crops.

Explaining previously expressed fears that a new program might be defeated in the referendum, Davis said that the AAA officials had been afraid that a heavy vote would not be cast. Had many producers in the corn belt failed to vote, he said, accepting the

Home Clubs

Shower Springs
The Shower Springs Home Demonstration club met with Mrs. Ernest Ross, October 17. Eleven members answered the roll call with their hobby.

The meeting was opened by singing "Arkansas" and the Lord's prayer was repeated in unison.

No reports were given. Mrs. John Reed delighted the club with a reading.

A number of beautiful articles in crochet, embroidery and quilts were displayed. Mrs. Earle McWilliams was winner in the Ball jar exhibit.

Mrs. John Reed was winner in the guessing contest of a mystery spoon. The hostess served popcorn.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. George Crews, November 21 and the following program will be given. Song, "Count Your Blessings," the first Thanksgiving. Mrs. Allie Collier Song, "Over the River." Reading, "If You Want to be Happy," LeVeta England. Poem, Mrs. John Reed. Song, to be selected.

theory that a new contract would be offered anyhow, he felt there would have been danger of an adverse ballot.

While AAA officials discounted political significance of the balloting, some informed quarters held that the results of the referendum might tend to remove the AAA as a 1936 presidential campaign issue.

Looking over the state tabulations, Davis expressed delight that preliminary returns indicated that a majority of non-contract signers voting this year favored a new program.

He recalled that last October, a ma-

Hurricane Dead to Reach 2,000 Mark

Full Extent of Disaster in Haiti Is Revealed Over Week-End

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti — (AP) — At least 2,000 persons are dead or missing in the storm which ravaged the southern peninsula, it was reported Monday.

Most of the casualties were caused by floods which followed the hurricane of a week ago. Thousands were reported homeless and hungry.

On Hurricane's Trail

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — (AP) — Official sources estimated Sunday night at least 2,000 persons are dead or missing as a result of the hurricane that swept over the southern peninsula last week-end.

Heavy rains accompanied the hurricane forcing all streams far out of their banks. The peninsula area has been isolated since Monday. The Jeremie region was the hardest hit according to official statements. Bodies of 96 have been recovered at Joamel.

First estimates placed the number of dead at possibly 1,000, but officials said they were forced to alter their figures, as later reports came in from the stricken sections. One small airjority of non-signers voted against production control. Likewise, it was pointed out that a heavy vote of approval was indicated in the Kansas returns, whereas that state voted against a program last year.

Maroon Monster
SYDNEY—(AP)—The latest reports of sea monsters, this time a red one, come from a fisherman of Buenos Vista, Solomon Islands, who claims the following experience:

"I was alone and watching my bait when I heard deep breathing behind me. I looked around and saw a dark red monster.

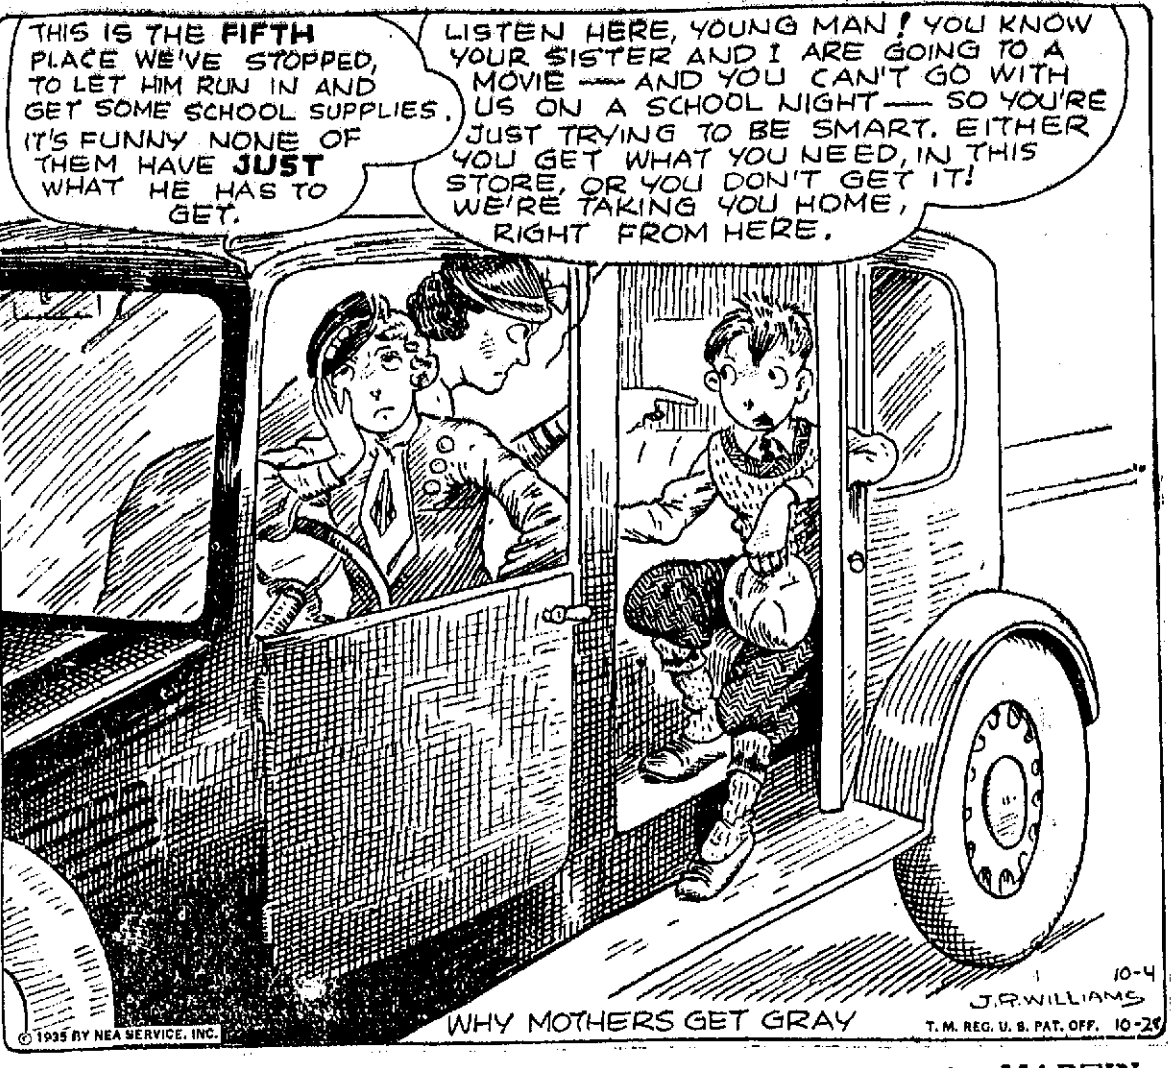

"It had a head like an alligator, except that the nose was square. The body was more than 20 feet long and as round as a coconut tree.

"It came in great leaps out of the water, with a bounding motion." The fisherman, who retreated to shore in his canoe, is supported by two native boys who say they saw the same thing.

Newest Actual Pictures From Two Battle-Fronts

Seemingly springing from the earth like the famed army of Laomachus, the armed hordes of Askaris fighting with the Italian army swarmed into action against Ethiopians across the rough country near Adowa on the northern battlefield. A daring staff cameraman pictures the awesome spectacle of a hillside alive with shouting warriors on the war path.

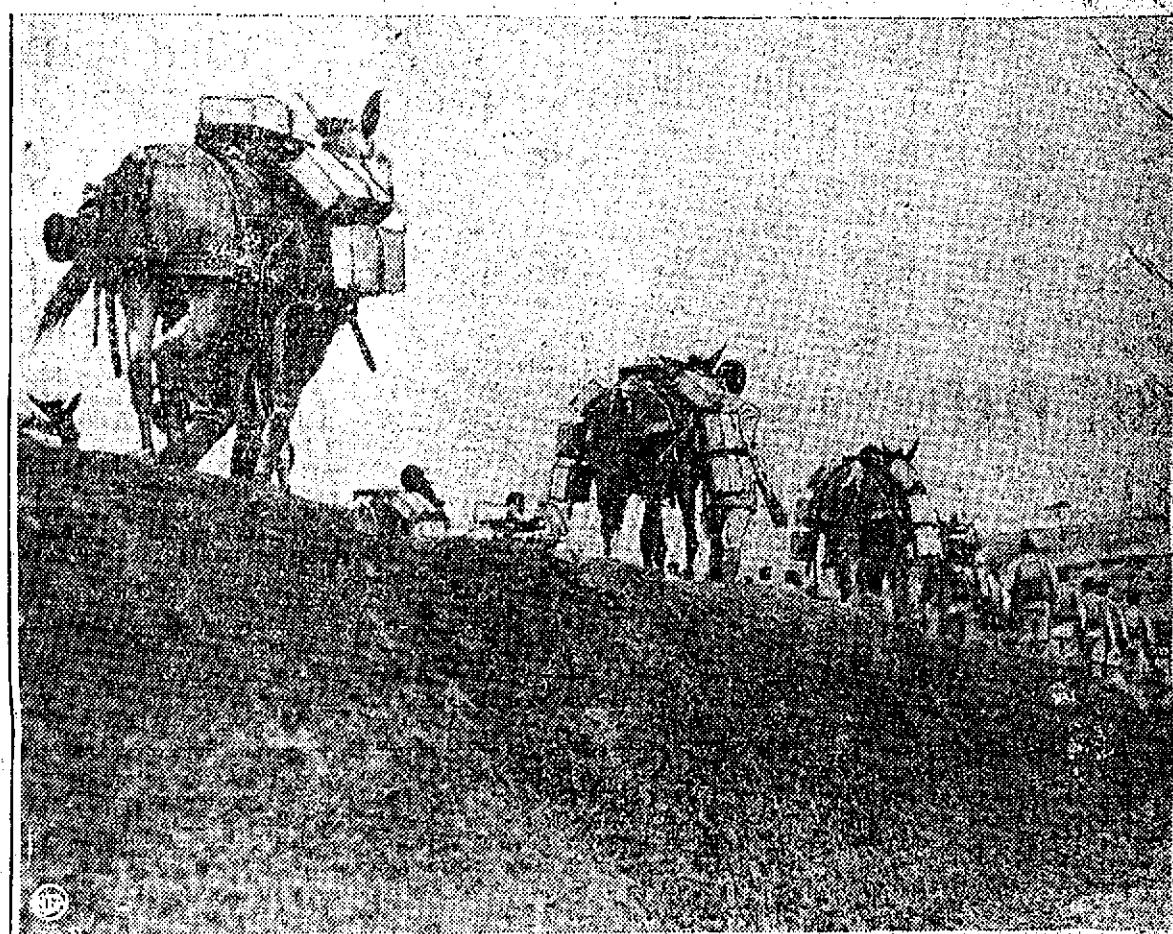

Ready to pit cold steel and eagerness for battle against the hot shot and shell of Italy's invaders, loyal Ethiopians pour out of the hills and deserts in answer to Emperor Haile Selassie's mobilization call. And they are just as eager to get to the front. Here, largely unarmed save for daggers and snickerees which are concealed under their voluminous sheeting, you see a column pouring out of Addis Ababa toward the front to stem the tide of invasion.

In the great Ogaden district where Italy's southern armies strive to drive back defending forces, every home is in peril from air raids and artillery attack, so Chief Bakale Ayele, most influential man in a region near Wal Wal, has trained his family and retainers as home guards. Even his wife (right) and young sons bear arms for re-against raiding planes or land foes.

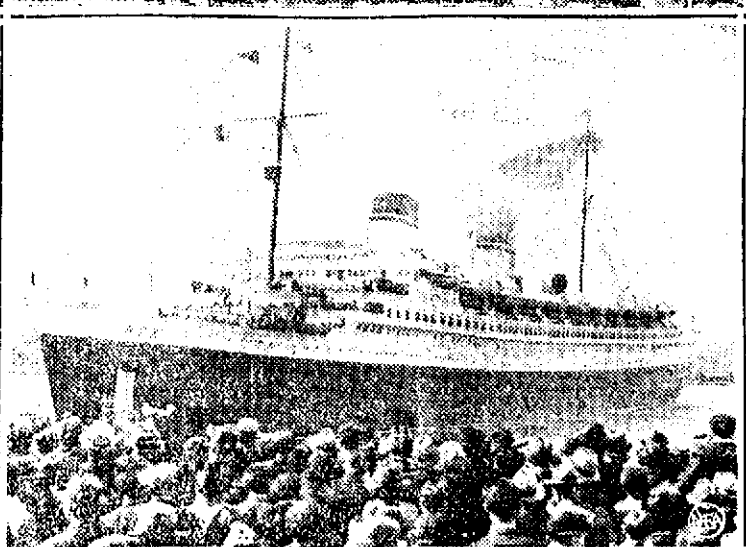

Italian tanks are shown rumbling over the hastily constructed military road to Aksum, en route to conquest of the Ethiopian holy city, which quickly capitulated.

Because of lack of adequate motor equipment, mule trains have been the chief means for moving munitions to the Ethiopian front lines. Here H. V. Dress, NEA Service Staff Cameraman, shows you a train of heavily laden pack mules plodding toward Wal Wal with cases of cartridges urgently needed in the fight against Italian invaders.

With fervor written in every line of his expression and posture, this priest of the Coptic Church, Ethiopia's state religion, is portrayed as he invoked patriotism and religion in persuasive oratory to recruit street crowds in Addis Ababa for the army. His participation in the recruiting work illustrates Ethiopia's united front against invasion by Italy.

One hundred and seventeen young reservists from New York, Philadelphia, and midwestern cities sailed from New York aboard the Italian liner Rex in response to Premier Mussolini's call to the colors in the war against Ethiopia. Cheering and singing, they are shown (top) as the Rex, with only 191 other passengers aboard, pulled away from the pier (below). Only a few Americans disregarded President Roosevelt's withdrawal of government protection of citizens traveling on ships of warring nations.

Are the Italian soldiers downhearted at the prospect of fighting the Ethiopians? This group says they aren't. Carrying banners (that below is a regimental emblem which has been decorated with a Jolly Roger, and that above shows Haile Selassie fleeing before an attack), singing and cheering lustily, they sailed with 3000 comrades from Naples.

Production Under Way at Chevrolet

65,000 of New Models to Be Completed by End of October

The Chevrolet Motor company, preparing for the introduction of its 1936 models on November 2, has reopened all its manufacturing plants and its assembly plants, and will have built more than 65,000 units by the end of October.

Schedules for November and December call for a greatly increased production.

The introductory day for the 1936 deluxe and standard models, Chevrolet officials say, will find every one of the company's 10,000 dealers stocked with display cars and in a position to take orders for immediate deliveries.

It is expected that sales in November and December, months that heretofore have been dull, will be brisk under the impetus of the new model announcement, and the large automobile shows, formerly held after January 1. The former show dates were not conducive to large selling, coming as they did in the coldest months of the year. This year's shows open with two whole months of pleasant weather remaining, and it is the industry's belief that many motorists will buy new models at once.

Employment is increasing rapidly in Chevrolet plants, as the supply of units and bodies for the new models increases daily. The change over from 1935 models to 1936 models was completed early in October, after a brief shut-down during which plants were re-aligned for increased production. According to W. E. Holler, vice president and general sales manager, Chevrolet dealers will have the advantage of an ample supply of the new models from the very start of the new selling year.

"There will be no shortage of models this year," said Mr. Holler. "We have not only got under full way long in advance of the auto shows, but we have, in addition, the advantage of a 25 per cent increase in our production capacity, both in assembly plants and in our factories making engines, transmissions, axles, and other units."

"The enthusiastic reception accorded our 1936 models by our own field forces, during their convention in Detroit, is now being repeated, in every region and zone territory, by our dealers. They all agree that Chevrolet has done a great job in its new cars, and they are all enthusiastic over the business prospects. We feel that the public will be just as responsive to our 1936 cars when they go on public display November 2."

2 More Slain in N. Y. Gang Warfare

Pair Found Shot to Death in Doorway of Manhattan Apartment House

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Gang guns blazed away again Monday, leaving two men seriously wounded in the doorway of an apartment house.

Police started an investigation to determine if the ambush had any connection with last week's gang warfare in which five mobsters, including the notorious Dutch Schultz, were exterminated.

Monday's victims were: Hugo Garaldo, 25; and Joseph Pegno, 24.

church law, effective for the first time this session, requires a presiding elder who has served four consecutive years to serve some other field for four years before he again may become presiding elder.

Sails to Spread Mormon Gospel

Following the example set by his namesake-ancestors, Brigham Young V. shown in New York just before he sailed, will travel through Europe to spread the gospel of the Church of Latter Day Saints (Mormon). Thirty missionaries are accompanying Young, who says that every 25 years in the last century a Brigham Young has gone abroad to serve his missionary term in England.

FIRST DOWN -AND THEN SOME BY HARRY GRAYSON

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—For the first time since 1931, when the Irish bogged down to close Hunk Anderson's first year as senior coach by being edged out by Southern California and beaten by Army, Notre Dame men today feel positive that the Old Gold and Light Blue definitely has been restored to its position at or near the head of the pigskin procession.

The 9-6 victory over Pittsburgh, against which Notre Dame had not scored in three consecutive contests, was the first definite proof that Grade A football has come back at South Bend.

As Elmer Layden, the thin Horseman of 1924, who was called home from Duquesne to put his alma mater back on the right track, says, "Notre Dame still has a long way to go."

However, the important point is that the Irish are on their way again. The system has been restored. Layden may not have all of the inspirational qualities of the late and lamented Knute Rockne. The soft-spoken Iowa may not be the play maker that Rockne was, nor match his bench strategy, but no coach ever was more thorough.

Irish Team No Longer Stutters and Stutters

The experienced Notre Dame squad really should have defeated Pittsburgh worse than it did.

The masterful Jock Southernland took a young Panther array—a half dozen sophomores started and played the greater part of the 60 minutes—a tremendous distance for this stage of the season, but the thing pointing to a rosier Notre Dame future is that the Irish played sound football and revealed the fight and dash and fire of Golden Dome athletes who wrote gridiron history.

This Notre Dame team came from behind and did not sputter and stutter near the goal line as Irish aggregations of the past four years had a habit of doing. Notre Dame was twice within Pittsburgh's 30-yard line, and scored on each occasion.

Layden made considerable progress in obtaining his bearings in his inaugural year as chief of the South Bend forces. In Notre Dame's early engagements this fall there were unmistakable signs that the outfit was going somewhere.

That Notre Dame men and the public, which had come to expect so much of Irish bands, appreciated this was made clear by the crowd of 51,000 which saw the young men of Layden finally overtake and pass Pittsburgh. It was the largest throng in the comparatively new Notre Dame Stadium since the dramatic and heart-breaking defeat by Southern California in 1931.

Notre Dame Spirit Flames Anew With Peters' Place Kick

And the Notre Dame spirit flamed anew with the mammoth Marty Peters' place kick from the 37-yard line with only four minutes left to play. No such demonstration has been seen on the shores of St. Mary's Lake since the old days.

Notre Dame has regained its football poise under Layden.

The current edition of the Irish plays heads up football.

Wild Will Shakespeare and Andy Piney, developed by Layden, a dependable kicker himself, averaged 41 yards on eight punts as against 34 for the Pittsburgh booters in 10.

Shakespeare, now a corking back, pulled his club out of a deep hole in the second period with a punt from his own end zone that traveled 70 yards in the air over the head of a surprised Leon Shedslosky, the Pittsburgh safety man, and rolled all the way to the Panther 10-yard chalk mark for a total distance of nearly 100 yards from where it was kicked.

A clever piece of defensive work by Wally Fromhart, Notre Dame safety man, prevented Pittsburgh from scoring midway in the opening quarter, when Hub Randour went wide around Wayne Millner's end for 62 yards.

There were three interferences in front of the flying Randour, and Fromhart used splendid judgment in fading back with them, pinning them to the sideline, and slowing them down, until Shakespeare could catch Randour from behind.

Pittsburgh's Most Effective Play Checked Between Halves

Pittsburgh employed this wide end run with great success throughout the first half, when Millner floated out with the play and was boxed.

Layden checked this, when he talked to his warriors between halves. Thereafter, Millner smashed into the interference, leaving the carrier to Vic Wojcikowski and Fred Carideo.

It then remained for Fromhart's alertness to win for Notre Dame. On Peters' place kick, Henry Pojman, the center, was instructed to pass the ball on the second number. Peters had just informed Fromhart, who held the ball, that he was all set, and the blond quarterback had barely opened his mouth to call the first number when the ball was rificed back.

"I just happened to see it coming out of the corner of my eye," beams Fromhart. By such narrow margins are gridiron giants captured.

Notre Dame suffers heavily by graduation next June, but there will be unlimited talent held over from the present first squad of 84 and four "B" teams, not to mention the incoming sophomores, and a half dozen hall teams, where a varsity man is found every now and then.

Rest assured, Notre Dame will take care of itself in the future, and then some. The seed is being sown again.

Meanwhile, don't miss the Ohio State battle at Columbus on November 2, the most promising and important of the year—if you can buy, beg, or borrow a duent.

Ohio State has plenty, but so has Notre Dame, which looks so natural back in the football sun.
